No funds for airport noise control

When it comes to environmental protection, we have come to expect that the polluter pays. This apparently does not apply to Dane County Executive Kathleen Falk and her county airport. Thanks to increasing flights, passengers and aircraft noise, they are spending $33 million for remodeling the terminal. Yet just last month, Airport Commissioner Bill White told East Side residents there was no money for noise abatement. If only we had a state public intervenor to look out for us.
