In the midst of the ongoing crisis in Ukraine, peace and social justice forces are concerned about how best to pursue peace in the region. The U.S. media has been hopelessly one-sided and does not contribute to our understanding of the history or current situation in Ukraine. To help us form a basis of common understanding on how to bring peace to this troubled region, we are hosting a forum of knowledgeable activists, experts in the region. Our featured speakers will be:

A longtime observer and writer on Eastern Europe, Zoltán Grossman is a Member of the Faculty in Geography and Indigenous Studies at The Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington, and an activist/scholar working on issues of ethnic nationhood, militarism, and natural resources.

Phyllis Bennis is a Program Director, at the Institute for Policy Studies, with a focus on U.S. Foreign Policy.

Moderator: Norman Stockwell, publisher of The Progressive magazine.

Co-sponsors include: Code Pink, Madison Veterans for Peace, Madison WorkingGroup on Peace in Ukraine, Physicians for Social Responsibility Wisconsin, Safe Skies Clean Water Wisconsin, Madison Area Democratic Socialists of America, and Madison Branch of Women's International League for Peace & Freedom.
